For my friend's birthday,
I invited him in one of the ~~xxxxxxx~~ <sup>ants</sup> top rated restaurant in London according to TripAdvisor: "The Shed". I told to him:
"it takes two month to get a place in this top-rated restaurant" and he replied
"I hope it's a good one!"
But, when we arrived ~~there~~ <sup>there</sup> ~~xxxxxxx~~ <sup>the right address</sup> ~~xx~~ ~~xxxxxx~~ <sup>the right address</sup> we had the same reaction: "WHAT?"
First time ~~xxxxxx~~ we thought that we weren't at the good address but no, that was the ~~xxxxxxx~~ <sup>correct</sup> one
So we began to speak to the people around of us:
"Hi" I said to a waitress "are we in the Shed, the top-rated restaurant on tripadvisor?"
"Yes, of course" she replied, "welcome to the Shed"
Okay so we have a reservation in this restaurant can we have a table please?

"can you sit us?"

"Yes show me" said the waitress."

Now, a few minutes after, we were sitting in a very little table with a lot of tables with people around us, we are both confused. A man came to our table he looked like the place's boss. so we told him:

"how can this restaurant be the most top rated of London?" and he replied to us

"as you can see, this is not a restaurant, we just trick TripAdvisor's users." my friend, very confused reply

"how is it possible to bait people on this application, I don't understand" and the restaurant's boss told him:

"it's easy: just ~~xxxxxxx~~ some people leave a review in a virtual restaurant at this address"

when it was the time to go, my friend told to me: "that was one of my best birthday but this guy is too smart he got us that was a very funny joke" and it's like that that the shed got us well played to them!
